Arab and Muslim Science Fiction Hosam A. Ibrahim Elzembely, Emad El-Din Aysha, 2022-05-06 How is science fiction from the Arab and Muslim world different than mainstream science fiction from the West? What distinctive and original contributions can it make? Why is it so often neglected in critical considerations of the genre? While other books have explored these questions, all have been from foreign academic voices. Instead, this book examines the nature, genesis, and history of Arabic and Muslim science fiction, as well as the challenges faced by its authors, in the authors' own words. These authors share their stories and struggles with censors, recalcitrant publishers, critics, the book market, and the literary establishment. Their uphill efforts, with critical contributions from academics, translators, and literary activists, will enlighten the sci-fi enthusiast and fill a gap in the history of science fiction. Topics covered range from culture shock to conflicts between tradition and modernity, proactive roles for female heroines, blind imitation of storytelling techniques, and language games.

Seraphic Love Likha Caral, 2023-05-07 “The brain has a unique function”. It was December the journey of icy morning peering slowly moving dusky lights from clouds. As I said “the brain has a unique function” my brain pressures me for mounting on the theme of Love this winter. Love; is one thing that inspired the greatest of poets and playwrights like Rumi, Pablo Neruda, John Keats, Emily Bronte, Shakespeare, Oscar Wilde, Robert Burns, etc. Their writing is the reflection of their composition of words and the content they offer to readers. Therefore I choose this theme as a capsule for my co-author; as we know love is a basic human need though it complicates emotion at the same time, but love is a hard to define emotion like the painting of Picasso a brilliant and wonderful art tell us one thing about love, as he quotes “Love is the greatest refreshment in life” it is a feeling which all humankind experienced in life. I define love as a universal language that will never lose its significance or beauty. Love suits each and every person differently whether love is between lovers, friends, family, or nature it is an overwhelming emotion that can be experienced in many ways. The concept of love has a variety of feelings, emotions, and behaviours. It is a desire to love and care other in a hard wired and deep- hearted. Love is an unimaginable and also it can never be summarized by an action neither it can ever be expressed by words.

Labyrinth of Hybridities Marc Maufort, 2010 Taking its cue from Eugene O'Neill's questioning of «faithful realism», voiced by Edmund Tyrone in Long Day's Journey into Night, this book examines the distant legacy of the Irish American playwright in contemporary multiethnic drama in the U.S. It explores the labyrinth of formal devices through which African American, Latina/o, First Nations, and Asian American dramatists have unconsciously reinterpreted O'Neill's questioning of mimesis. In their works, hybridizations of stage realism function as aesthetic celebrations of the spiritual potentialities of cultural in-betweenness. This volume provides detailed analyses of over forty plays authored by such key artists as August Wilson, Suzan-Lori Parks, José Rivera, Cherrie Moraga, Hanay Geiogamah, Diane Glancy, David Henry Hwang, and Chay Yew, to give only a few prominent examples. All in all, Labyrinth of Hybridities invites its readers to reassess the cross-cultural patterns characterizing the history of twentieth century American drama.
