Psychosocial, Behavioral, and Clinical Implications for Public Mental Health During the COVID-19 Pandemic Zonglin He,Babatunde Akinwunmi,Wai-kit Ming,2023-09-15

Cognitive and Mental Health Improvement Under- and Post-COVID-19 Chong Chen, Gabriele Nibbio, Yuka Kotozaki,2025-03-19 An increasing body of research suggests that the COVID-19 pandemic has worsened global mental health and caused more cognitive impairments. Whereas the COVID-19 pandemic is still ongoing in some regions, it is expected to be ending for most regions in the very near future. From a psychological, psychiatric, and public mental health perspective, it is of vital importance to conduct effective and efficient interventions to promote cognitive and mental health, for they not only are essential for us to cope with the ongoing pandemic, but also necessary for us to rebuild a better world post-the pandemic. Not to say that a healthy cognitive and mental health state is at the core of human wellbeing and deserves its own place. From previous studies and everyday practices, we already know that regular exercise, appropriate sleep, nutritious diet, close social ties, connection with nature, mindfulness, among others, help improve cognition and boost mental health. However, the optimal regimen for each specific cognitive and mental health outcome for a specific population, including both those of healthy and clinical, is unclear and remain to be identified. Furthermore, the underlying psychological, physiological, and neurobiological mechanisms through which each activity or intervention improves cognition and promotes mental health are to be clarified. The aim of this Research Topic is to publish a wide range of studies that help address these unsolved issues and advance our understanding of what activities and interventions help improve cognition and promote mental health. Any topics relevant to cognitive functions, academic or work performance, affective wellbeing, and mental health are welcome. Both studies of acute and chronic/regular effects are welcome. The subjects can be healthy human volunteers, clinical patients, or animals of different ages and sexes. Article types include, but are not limited to, original research, brief research reports, clinical trials, reviews, meta-analyses, hypothesis and theory articles. For original research and brief research reports, the design can be cross-sectional, longitudinal, or interventional, as long as they provide insights into cognitive and mental health promotion.

Salutogenic Approach Promoting Students' Mental Health During COVID-19 Lay Yoon Fah, Walton Wider, Nasehah Binti Mohd Taib, Mohd Wafiy Akmal Bin Ahmad Khadri, 2023-05-05 Blended-teaching module has been encouraged by the Malaysian government from day one, especially during this recent COVID-19 pandemic. Owing to the emergence of COVID-19 and the imposition of lockdown, most of the teaching and learning aspects have resorted to the online medium to an extent in the hope of providing quality education to the learners, taking into consideration the health and safety factor. A proper blended-teaching module has the tendency to encourage the social and emotional skills of students with the guidance of positive psychology being upfront. Having said that, this particular blended-teaching module is generally exceptional as it has salutogenic framework that serves as a basic guide to educators when they are playing an integral part in the ecosystem of blended teaching. The main function of this framework is to assist the educators by organizing and channelling the correct method of adapting for the students that are new to blended teaching. Community Series in Mental Illness, Culture, and Society: Dealing with the COVID-19 Pandemic, volume VIII

Mohammadreza Shalbafan, Samer El Hayek, Renato de Filippis, 2024-06-21 The COVID-19 outbreak has impacted many areas of our lives, including mental health. Lockdown and physical distancing measures have been one major effective intervention to counter the spread of the virus and reduce the impact of the disease. However, they have negatively impacted mental well-being and behaviors, either triggering the onset of new psychiatric symptoms and diseases or amplifying pre-existing ones. The pandemic and lockdown measures have also been associated with reduced access to treatment and facilities all over the world, further worsening mental health outcomes. The impact on mental health, although universal, varied between nations. Cultural and societal variables, including norms, values, religion, and stigma have played an important role in shaping COVID-19-related mental health symptoms, including anxiety, depression, grief, psychosis, and addiction. These sociocultural factors have also molded how mental health interventions are tailored and provided. Highlighting the intertwining relationship between the pandemic, mental health, and sociocultural factors are essential to managing emerging mental health symptoms adequately.

Forces of Nature and Cultural Responses Katrin Pfeifer, Niki Pfeifer, 2012-12-20 How do and how did people perceive, manage and respond to natural disasters? How are the causes of natural disasters explained in history, how are they explained today? This volume investigates relationships between forces of nature and human culture in a multidisciplinary context bridging science and the humanities. Forces of nature and cultural responses is divided into four sections: (1) ball lightnings, (2) earthquakes and tsunamis, (3) volcanic eruptions and plagues, and (4) hurricanes and floodings. Specifically, Section 1 investigates theories and case studies of ball lightning phenomena. Section 2 includes a psychological study on the impact of earthquakes on academic performance, a study on tsunami vulnerability and recovery strategies in Thailand and a study on the social and economic aftermaths of a tsunami and a hurricane in Hawaii. Section 3 consists of a chapter on volcanic eruptions and plagues as well as cultural responses in Ancient Times and a study on contemporary vulnerability and resilience under chronic volcanic eruptions. Section 4 investigates the impact of hurricane Katrina on the current jazz scene in New Orleans and cultural responses to floodings in The Netherlands in Early Modern Times.

and inform evidence-based practice of 'Lifestyle Psychiatry', while providing clear directions for future research required to take the field forward.

reported in Wuhan, China in December 2019 and the causative agent was discovered in January 2020 to be a novel betacoronavirus of the same subgenus as SARS-CoV and named severe acute respiratory syndrome coronavirus 2 (SARS-CoV-2). Coronavirus disease 2019 (COVID-19) has rapidly disseminated worldwide, with clinical manifestations ranging from mild respiratory symptoms to severe pneumonia and a fatality rate estimated around 2%. Person to person transmission is occurring both in the community and healthcare settings. The World Health Organization (WHO) has recently declared the COVID-19 epidemic a public health emergency of international concern. The ongoing outbreak presents many clinical and public health management challenges due to limited understanding of viral pathogenesis, risk factors for infection, natural history of disease including clinical presentation and outcomes, prognostic factors for severe illness, period of infectivity, modes and extent of virus inter-human transmission, as well as effective preventive measures and public health response and containment interventions. There are no antiviral treatment nor vaccine available but fast track research and development efforts including clinical therapeutic trials are ongoing across the world. Managing this serious epidemic requires the appropriate deployment of limited human resources across all cadres of health care and public health staff, including clinical, laboratory, managerial and epidemiological data analysis and risk assessment experts. It presents challenges around public communication and messaging around risk, with the potential for misinformation and disinformation. Therefore, integrated operational research and intervention, learning from experiences across different fields and settings should contribute towards better understanding and managing COVID-19. This Research Topic aims to highlight interdisciplinary research approaches deployed during the COVID-19 epidemic, addressing knowledge gaps and generating evidence for its improved management and control. It will incorporate critical, theoretically informed and empirically grounded original research contributions using diverse approaches, experimental, observational and intervention studies, conceptual framing, expert opinions and reviews from across the world. The Research Topic proposes a multi-dimensional approach to improving the management of COVID-19 with scientific contributions from all areas of virology, immunology, clinical microbiology, epidemiology, therapeutics, communications as well as infection prevention and public health risk assessment and management studies.
