From prehistoric times, humans harnessed light's power through fire, and later, through the invention of illumination devices such as candles and gas lamps. Light - Learn Physics What is Light? Light is a type of energy that enables us to see with our eyes. Light travels from a source, like the sun or a light bulb, to our eyes, and to the surroundings. That is the reason we can see objects during daytime with the sunlight, or with a light bulb in the night. How Light Works - HowStuffWorks But what exactly is light? We catch glimpses of its nature when a sunbeam angles through a dust-filled room, when a rainbow appears after a storm or when a drinking straw in a glass of water looks disjointed. Light - New World Encyclopedia The study of light and its interaction with matter is termed optics. The observation and study of optical phenomena such as rainbows and the aurora borealis offer many clues about the nature of light as well as much enjoyment. Light - Wikipedia The main source of natural light on Earth is the Sun. Historically, another important source of light for humans has been fire, from ancient campfires to modern kerosene lamps. With the development of electric lights and power systems, electric lighting has effectively replaced firelight. The Basics of Light - Johns Hopkins University Simply stated, light is nature's way of transferring energy through space. We can complicate it by talking about interacting electric and magnetic fields, quantum mechanics, and all of that, but just remember-- light is energy. Light travels very rapidly, but it does have a finite velocity.
