100 Best Quotes from Children's Books Susan Gabrielle, 2012-07-30 ABOUT THE BOOK Storytelling has been around as long as humankind, although the ability to be a storyteller or history-keeper is a special gift not everyone possesses. Generations of our ancestors told oral tales of encounters with nature-with wild animals or with the land itself, real or imagined. Clans gathered around to hear of dreams or of explanations of certain unexplainable phenomena, such as thunder and lightning. These stories were often illustrated by scratching them or painting them onto cave walls or on rocks, and especially those tales of great battles against warring tribes. Some of the stories only existed as verbal histories passed from grandfathers to sons to grandsons. MEET THE AUTHOR Susan Gabrielle has had work published in The Christian Science Monitor, TheBatShat, New Verse News, and local publications, and was a finalist in the Tiny Lights Narrative Essay Contest. Her short story What she should have said was published in the Social Justice issue of the Little Patuxent Review, and she has been nominated for a Pushcart Prize for her poem After 10 years of War. She currently teaches writing and literature classes as a university instructor, and is at work on a nonfiction writers' guide. You can reach her at Susan-Gabrielle.com EXCERPT FROM THE BOOK But while storytelling itself is an ancient art form, the genre of children's literature is relatively new, and children's book publishing only came to prominence beginning in Great Britain in the 18th century. As Allen notes, From the time John Newbery, publisher and bookseller, decided to create books just for children in 18th-century England until the end of the 19th century, when English industry produced children's books of the highest quality, the body of children's literature that became available from England earned a growing respect throughout the literary world. Before that time, children were treated as miniature adults, useful only insofar as their ability to bring income to the home. Most children up to the 1800s worked on the family farm, so there was little free time for play, and since many children did not attend school, they could not read. The family may have owned a Bible, but it most likely would have been read to them by the father, perhaps after dinner. She's fully occupied by her love of math and her frequent battles with anxiety. Besides, she's always found the idea of kissing to be kind of weird and pretty unsanitary, when you think about it. Maybe even brave enough to enter a prestigious physics competition or to say yes to the new boy who's been flirting with her. Evie's best friend, Caleb, has always been a little in love with Evie, and though he knows she isn't ready for romance, he hopes that when she is, she'll choose him. So Caleb is horrified when he is forced to witness Evie's meet-cute with a floppy-haired, mathematically gifted transfer student. In desperation, Caleb decides to use an online forum to capture Evie's interest. When it goes better than he could've wished for, he wonders if it's possible to be jealous of himself. And Evie wonders how she went from eschewing romance to having to choose between two—or is it three?—boys.

When her dad calls with an offer to join him to film the next episode of his popular survivalist show, Danny jumps at the chance to prove she's not the disappointment he left behind. Being on set with the hottest teen movie idol of the moment, Gus Price, should be the cherry on top. All life seems to be sacred except human life. Always trying to build a house by beginning at the top. Believed it; because she desired to believe it. Best intentions and the frailest resolution. But there are liars everywhere this year. Children were clothed in nothing but sunshine. Fertile in invention and elastic in conscience. Fun—but of a mild type. Grief that is too deep to find help in moan or groan or outcry. Haughty humility. I was not scared, but I was considerably agitated. I had a delicacy about going home and getting thrashed. Imagination to help his memory. Invariably allowed a half for shrinkage in his statements. It used to be a good hotel, but that proves nothing. It is easier to stay out than get out. It had cost something to upholster these women. Keg of these nails—of the true cross. Let me take your grief and help you carry it. Life a vanity and a burden, and the future but a way to death. Man is the only animal that blushes—or needs to. Man was not a liar he only missed it by the skin of his teeth.

Money is most difficult to get when people need it most. No people who are quite so vulgar as the over-refined ones. No nation occupies a foot of land that was not stolen. 1 Nothing that glitters is gold. Notion that he is less savage than the other savages. Nursed his woe and exalted it. Ostentatious of his modesty. Otherwise they would have thought I was afraid, which I was. People talk so glibly of feeling, expression, tone. Pity is for the living, Envy is for the dead. Seventy is old enough—after that, there is too much risk. Sleep that heals all heart-aches and ends all sorrows. Slept, if one might call such a condition by so strong a name. Smell about them which is peculiar but not entertaining. Takes your enemy and your friend, working together, to hurt you. The man with a new idea is a Crank until the idea succeeds. To a delicate stomach even imaginary smoke can convey damage. Tourists showing how things ought to be managed. Travel is fatal to prejudice, bigotry and narrow-mindedness. Uncomplaining impoliteness. Very pleasant man if you were not in his way. Wasn't worth a cent two years ago, and now I owe two millions. 2 We ought never to do wrong when people are looking. What's a fair wind for us is a head wind to them. Whichever one they get is the one they want. Worth while to get tired out, because one so enjoys resting.
