The Parry Arc | Geophysical Institute Jul 31, 2025 · Was this a mirage, the northern lights or what? A possible explanation is the Parry arc named after the explorer, W. E. Parry, who first reported seeing the phenomenon while searching for a northwest passage in 1819-1820. The Parry arc is actually moonlight or sunlight deflected by passing through elongated airborne ice crystals. The Highest Mirage in North America | Geophysical Institute Mar 2, 1995 · Is the Great One a grand illusion? Is the tallest mountain in North America a mirage? A friend recently told me that the Mount McKinley we see as a huge lump on the southwest Fairbanks horizon is actually an impostor, an optical illusion that really isn't there. She said that because of the curvature of the Earth, we shouldn't be able to see the mountain from ... Arctic Mirage \(Hillingar\) | Geophysical Institute Aug 14, 2025 · In the arctic mirage a distant object appears right way up but higher up than the actual location. Though arctic and desert mirages seem to be quite different, they share a common fundamental cause. It is that light rays passing from an object through air to an observer always refract (bend) in the direction of increasing air density. The Aleutians, 1942--Revisited | Geophysical Institute The Harrier is fairly bulky, intended primarily for ground support, and does not have the fighter potential of the sleek Mirage. But it does not require long runways on which to take off or land, and can even hover like a helicopter. Performance alone probably will not decide the contest between these two aircraft. Fata Morgana | Geophysical Institute Jul 31, 2025 · Fata Morgana, also known as Morgan le Fay, was a fairy enchantress skilled in the art of changing shape. In one traditional story she was King Arthur's sister and learned many of her skills from Merlin the Magician. A special type of complex mirage, one that sometimes gives the impression of a castle half in the air and half in the sea, is named after Fata Morgana. She ... Mirages | Geophysical Institute Jul 11, 2025 · Even when the air is stagnant, there is enough air movement to cause the mirage images to come and go rapidly. Unfortunately, the same layering that gives us glorious mirages compounds the severe air pollution problem in the Fairbanks area. Ruminations on Alaskan Marvels from 41 Years Ago May 22, 2025 · It was another antic of mirage." "Then there are the frost quakes. It appears the earth can stand just so much freezing, then, due to expansion, something has got to give. As the earth cracks there is a local earthquake, giving the occupants of an igloo directly over it quite a scare, yet not even disturbing their next door neighbor. Tanana Valley Mirages - Geophysical Institute Jan 23, 2025 · The Arctic mirage is a different story altogether. During inversion conditions in the Tanana Valley, there is a layer of dense, cold air next to the ground with warmer air overlying it.

Under these conditions light rays between two points are bent downward (convex upward), making it appear that distant objects are higher than they actually are. Gasohol - Geophysical Institute Feb 6, 2025 · One of the suggested methods to reduce the need to import petroleum is to produce fuel from agricultural crops. Gasohol, a mixture of 90% unleaded gasoline and 10% ethyl alcohol, can be used in autos without making carburetor adjustments. Whether better or worse mirage results is debatable; most results so far indicate it is worse compared to burning gasoline. Pingos Pop Up in Alaska's North Country - Geophysical Institute Jul 31, 1997 · Many people have no doubt puzzled at the word "pingo" after spotting it on a topographic map. After you see one, the name seems to fit.
